

Christina Betker

CEO of the Saskatchewan Cattlemen's Association

SCA Announces New CEO

During the Saskatchewan Cattlemen's Association (SCA) AGM, it was announced that Christina Betker will replace Grant McLellan as CEO. Christina has been with SCA for nearly 10 years, serving as Policy Manager. She has extensive experience in the agriculture sector, along with time spent working in both the Canadian and U.S. governments.

"While we are sad to see Grant go, we are confident that Christina will transition smoothly into the role," said Chad Ross, SCA Chair. "She understands our industry, our producers, and the challenges we face, which will be invaluable as she takes on this position. We are excited to see what she brings to the table."

"I've had the great fortune of working with and learning from two outstanding CEOs. While I look forward to making the role my own, I will certainly carry forward the lessons I've learned from each. I wish Grant all the best—he was a great ambassador for the industry and worked tirelessly to ensure SCA's voice was heard," said Christina. For media inquiries, please contact:
